

SUMMARY

The object of this Utility model consists in the addition of an electric hand lamp or emergency light function to a cordless transmitter that is used to remotely control the locking or unlocking of the vehicles doors and trunk, and/or and, in some cases, the antitheft security or alarm system, letting the possessor of the transmitter the advantage of having a source of illumination, without the necessity of carrying another device designed specifically to illuminate a dark area, or to generate a strong emergency light signal.